A sanitary brand presents itself

Does the round thing always have to go into the square thing?

This saying, being true in the football world, has been newly interpreted in the current series of Multiple washing solutions from Franke. Two modern, freshly designed moulded shapes are the basis for the new washing system made of mineral granite, a material well suited for various architectural requirements.

Where a modern, down-to-earth design is required for the sanitary room, design model Quadro is the first choice. The basic rectangular shape streamlines over into an attractive flowing bowl, the flat form of which provides users with a pleasant hand-washing experience. The Ronda model describes an aesthetic circular form, which was cut at a line in parallel with the wall. The pleasing shape fits harmoniously into every washing room. Thanks to the flat rear edge and an apron height of only 60 millimetres, both design models of the new washing system appear clean and stylish.

The concept of the new washbasins fully utilises the design potential inherent in the mineral-granite material. In spite of the high stability, fracture resistance and durability of the material, the mixture of natural minerals and high-quality polyester resin can be elegantly and seamlessly formed. The smooth, nonporous Gelcoat outer coating provides this series of washbasins with a perfect, high-gloss and easy-to-clean surface.

Depending on the intended application, both design lines are available as single, double, multiple basin row and recessed washbasins. The width of a washing unit is based on the 600 mm standard for washbasins, so that for several washing units the centre-to-centre distance of the bowls is 700 mm. For example, a multiple basin row washbasin with three washing units has a total width of 2.1 metres. This maximum size is also valid for the recessed washbasins that can be equipped with one or two washbowls.

All of the Alpine white washbasin models can be ordered with or without tap hole and can be very well combined with self closing or electronic wash fittings out of the Franke range of products.

Franke's new row washing system is initially rolling out with the double washbasin embodiments, presented here in the Ronda design model with almost circular washbowls.

Mineral granite, this elegant and yet stable material, facilitates creative freedom, particularly demonstrated in conjunction with the flowing moulded shapes of the Quadro double washbasin.
